495 Information Science and Technology Seminar (1)

A research or experiential project developed under the guidance of a department faculty member to culminate a student's study of information science and technology. Completion of the project, including a written and oral presentation, demonstrates the skills expected of a Doane information science and technology student, including a solid understanding of information science and technology concepts; the confidence and skills to 1) work with existing and emerging computing technology; 2) efficiently research and learn an unknown topic or solve an unknown problem; and 3) effectively communicate, including writing, speaking, and listening. This course may be taken twice. Prerequisite: Information Science and Technology student with junior or senior standing and permission.

ACTIVITIES

137 Doane Information Solutions Cadre (DISC) (0-1)

Provides students with an experience that will allow them to apply their understanding of information systems and applications in creating an information system solution. Students will be assigned to a project team and given responsibilities as part of that team. The team will be given a project that will involve analyzing a user's needs, designing a solution, and implementing that solution. Prerequisite: Permission. (Pass/Fail)

Interdisciplinary Studies (IDS)

102 The Community and Leadership (1)

A freshman course focusing attention on aspects of the community which are important but not entirely academic. It consists primarily of two types of activity, each of which is designed to help students participate in and understand what it is to be part of a community: a series of public event programs and a limited community service project.

International Studies (INT)

Associate Professor Franklin
Associate Professor Reinkordt

This major is a multi-disciplinary course of studies involving economics, history, modern languages, and political science. The emphasis is on Europe, incorporating many courses from the aforementioned fields. A major in International Studies creates the foundation for further studies in graduate school, here as well as abroad.
