Syllabus
BUS 608
Doane College, Winter II 2014
Communication in a Global Environment

Mondays 6:00 – 10:30 p.m.
January 15-March 15
Karla J. Cooper
573-344-7198; 402-826.6747
karla.cooper@doane.edu

Course description
BUS 608 brings together many sound ideas for understanding the concept of communication through interpersonal and public sources that affect our understanding of the global community. The class gives particular attention to global sources and systems of communications; cultural context in which information is received, interpreted and understood. Class participation is crucial and effective communication is paramount. Critical thinking is a core pillar so every effort will be made to make the course intellectually challenging.

Assessment
Assessment is ongoing and involves contributions to the collaborative process, group work, reflection papers, assignments, and a final project.

Text requirements
Other required readings as provided

Course requirements
Assignments
Listening
Readings
Participation
Reflection Papers
Attendance
Group Presentations
Completion of assignments
Final Project
Investigation of class readings
Respect for classmates & their ideas

Weekly Assignments
Watch and read about events happening in the world. Create a journal of events, reflect on and share each class.

Final Project: Use your imagination.

Option 1:
Choose a place on another continent preferably an under developed area with little to no Western influence. You will research the demographics, language, culture. Develop a project that will empower the indigenous people to achieve economic and education success. Why would the indigenous people need what you have to offer to succeed? From what lens are you measuring success? Why are you there? Why do you care? What are the gaps in communication? How many bridges are you building to cross over the gaps?

Option 2:
Create a village, a language, a people. What does that village look like, smell like, feel like? Effectively articulate the culture and context. You want to write a grant to the U.S. Department of State to support this village. Explain why? What are the gaps in communication? What bridges are you building to cross over the gaps? Why are you there? Why do you care?
Tentative Schedule: January 15-March 15

January 15
Please be aware and prepared to discuss current global issues that are in the news from articles in the newspaper and magazines of your choice.

2nd Session
Part I: Introduction and Orientation
Questions/Concerns/Assumptions
Part II: video

3rd Session
Global Sources and Systems of Communication: Concepts, Economics, and Politics. Special Guest
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 1 & 2
Part III: Lecture/debriefing

4th Session
Global Sources and Systems of Communication: Concepts, Economics and Politics
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 3 & 4
Part III: Lecture/debriefing

5th Session
The Cultural Context in which Information is Received, Interpreted, and Understood
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 5 & 6
Part III: Lecture/debriefing

6th Session
The Cultural Context in which Information is Received, Interpreted, and Understood
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 7, 8, 9 & 10
Part III: Lecture/debriefing

7th Session
The Cultural Context in which Information is Received, Interpreted, and Understood
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 11 & 12
Part III: Lecture/debriefing

8th Session
The Cultural Context in which Information is Received, Interpreted, and Understood
Part I: Personal Reflections/journals shared
Part II: Chapter presentation: Chapters 13 & 14
Part III: Lecture/debriefing
What does this all mean?
Final Projects
course evaluations
BUS 608 Learning Objectives

The course assignments and discussions are designed as installments leading up to the final project where students effectively fill in the gaps of global communication by:

- Recognizing and challenging assumptions presented in the media
- Demonstrating a global perspective and appreciation through new ways of thinking, planning and communicating inter-culturally
- Developing intercultural competencies
- Demonstrating an understanding of the interconnectedness of political, economic, religious and environmental systems that influence media through various methods of communication
- Developing an ability to use appropriate international etiquette in business and other situations