CMS 220 Interpersonal Communication fulfills the requirement for a Foundational Area of Knowledge in Rhetorical Communication.

Description: Any course that fulfills that requirement will assure that students will use language purposely and effectively to become more thoughtful communicators, more keenly aware of what they are doing and why in each phase of the communication process.

Learning Outcomes
The focus of CMS 220 will be to analyze rhetorical context (purpose, audience, genre) and operate accordingly in oral and/or written communication. In addition, CMS 220 will seek to understand effective communication as a process that involves reasoned decision making and multiple steps including planning, invention, drafting, feedback, revision, and editing.

Course Description:
A focus upon the nature and influence of communicative behavior in close, personal relationships Interpersonal communication structure and processes are explored as they relate to the development and maintenance of identities, friendships, romance, and family relationships.

In addition to FAK learning outcomes, learning outcomes specific to this course:
Through thorough examination and discussion of theoretical study and practice of communication exercises, at the end of this course, each participant should:

1. Establish effective interpersonal, intrapersonal, and group communication
2. Know the techniques for improvement of communication skills
3. Be able to assess his/her communication skills
4. Become aware of barriers to effective communication
5. Be aware of different perceptions and possibilities for interpretation of communication

Description of learning strategies:
To meet the stated learning outcomes students will complete assigned readings and activities from the workbook. Students will further discuss the assignments, interact and communicate with each other in large and small groups. Lectures, presentations, and guest speakers will also be utilized throughout this course. Finally, students will exhibit concepts learned in class through a group and an individual project/presentation.

Academic Integrity Policy:
This policy requires that you immediately and cheerfully offer the benefit of your knowledge and skills to any fellow student who needs your help. If someone helps you, whether a fellow student the author of a book/article, a family member, a pastor or priest, a coworker, a child, a pet, or anyone else, say that the helped you. That’s called citing a source. Always show respect for the ideas or words of others by giving them credit. Any use of others’ ideas and words without proper citation of sources is plagiarism and will result in penalties to be determined by the instructor and/or the dean of undergraduate studies.
