HISTORY

In the summer of 1970, the early planning for the experimental program in Teacher Education at Doane began. New staff had joined the education division to compliment those already present who were committed to discovering new and hopefully better ways to prepare teachers to meet the demands of an ever changing educational scene. Several students and K-12 school faculty from the area were invited in the Fall of 1970, to join the education faculty in the planning of the developmental program.

Meetings were held two and three times each week to explore several alternative approaches. The Doane Teacher Education Program grew out of these long hours of debate. This competency based program was the result of a commitment by the staff, faculty, and the students to five basic concerns:

1. Students should be able to move at their own rate of speed through any academic program--a commitment to individual differences;
2. The use of developmental procedures to provide not only for an integration of separate courses, but also an integration of theory and practice;
3. A program that is practical in nature which gives greatest attention to actual classroom experiences rather than to theory;
4. The need for early exploratory experiences in the elementary and secondary classroom to better enable students to decide if they wish to teach and at what grade level or in what area they would like to prepare to teach;
5. Since the program is developmental and is considered by the staff and faculty to be evolutionary, this program should be constantly revised and rewritten on the basis of student and faculty feedback.

In 1981-82, the Education Faculty went through an extensive review of the Program. Alumni who had graduated during the seventies were asked to evaluate the "packets" and other experiences in the Doane Teacher Education Program in light of their experiences as teachers. Students in the program were asked to go beyond the regular evaluation to assist in this comprehensive review. The results of this year of study were: 1) a greater commitment than ever to the process of the Program; 2) a renewal of the five basic concerns which are delineated above; and 3) a complete rewrite of all of the materials in Practicum I. (This rewrite put new emphasis on matters of concern that were noted by alumni and present students; e.g., mainstreaming, conferencing with parents, computer technology, learning theory, testing and evaluation, discipline, sexism, and communication.)

During the 1984-85 academic year, the Teacher Education Faculty conducted another review of the Program. Students were asked to evaluate the previously stated basic concerns as they applied to the present faculty and students. Crete teachers and administrators were asked to attend evaluation sessions on the teacher assisting program. The results of these efforts led to a revision of Practicum I. More emphasis was placed on large-group instruction in the Education 211 sequence. The 221 experience was primarily field oriented with emphasis on developing organizational and teaching skills. Education 231 brought the field experience and individualized instruction together. There was more team teaching; more preparation for the teacher assisting experience through extensive orientation; more classroom experience for all Practicum I students (going from an average of 200 hours for each student to 250 hours of classroom assisting for all Practicum I students); a gradual movement from individual experiences for the students to large group experiences; and, continuing emphasis on integration of theory and practice.

Initial Accreditation from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education was received in 1981 and in 1985.

In April of 1989 the Nebraska State Board of Education approved all programs leading to certification and was accredited with no deviations. Throughout the spring of 1989, the Education Faculty conducted another review of the Doane Teacher Education Program. The Teacher Education Advisory Committee was asked to review each of the components; students and graduates also were involved in the review. The feedback from these groups led the Faculty to decide to make four major changes: 1) Give more attention to classroom management; 2) Integrate all of the competencies throughout Practicum I; 3) Drop some of the components so greater attention could be given to those competencies which were identified as crucial for the Practicum I experience; and, 4) Provide more required field experiences for the Multicultural components.

The faculty rewrote all of the mini-courses and redesigned the individualized experiences. A continuing commitment to the extensive field experiences in Practicum I and integration of theory and practice were evident in these revisions. That updated program was introduced in the Fall of 1989, and was evaluated over the next two years.

In September 1990 the Doane Education Program was reaccredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Spring and Summer of 1992 were times of significant changes in the Doane Teacher Education program. New faculty were attracted to Doane for several reasons; among these reasons were the opportunity to teach in a field-based program and the strong national reputation of the Doane Teacher Education Unit. Some faculty were able to attend a three-day curriculum revision held in May, 1992. Others joined during the summer. On-going drafts of revised Practicum I courses were presented in mid-August during education faculty inservice meetings. The faculty recognized the transition from the competency based model of the seventies to one approaching the constructivist philosophy. During the meetings of the Spring and Summer of 1992, the Doane Teacher Education Program evolved again to become a continuous progress, modified constructivist program of education with classes characterized by inquiry, reflectivity, and collaboration tied to the extensive field components. The shift was a logical one for program integrity among the Practica phases, in light of current knowledge of best practice, and the momentum for reflectivity in classrooms.

In 1992 an effort was made to further develop the skills of new teachers in the Doane Education Department with the development of a series of graduate courses to support the requirements for teacher certification. These courses later were expanded into the Curriculum and Instruction Master's Program. In 1996 an additional program at the graduate level was added leading to an administrative certificate in the Educational Leadership Program.

In 1995 Doane College was granted accreditation by the National Council for accreditation of Teacher Education.

In the 1998 review, the mission and belief statements were revised and guiding principles were added. In the Fall of 1992, 1998 and again in the spring of 2001, 2005, 2007 and 2014 the faculty reviewed beliefs about education acceptable to the group. The mission, belief statements, and guiding principles, and new standards were written in 2005 to replace the previous outcomes.

In 2002 current trends in the field of education lead to the addition of the Initial Certification at the Advanced Level Program (Fast Track). This program was designed for students with an undergraduate degree interested in obtaining a teaching certificate. The program was initially designed for adult students with a content area degree but later was expanded to include special education and elementary.

In the Fall of 2005 The Doane Teacher Education Program was granted accreditation by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

The constant need for leadership in education encouraged the Education Department to pursue the development of programs beyond the master's level. In 2010 after many attempts by the faculty the department was able to launch the Educational Specialist Program. While this program was not a full Doctoral program, it allowed students to apply courses beyond the master level to a terminal degree in preparation for district level leadership.

In October of 2012 the Doane Education Department was granted accreditation by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

In 2015 the Doctorate of Education Program was launched with a group of 25 students. This degree has allowed students to further advance toward career goals and provided an emphasis on scholarship within the Teacher Education Program.

In 2016 Doane College became Doane University to reflect the various levels of programs offered and the structure of multiple campuses and colleges. At this time the Doane College of Education was developed to function within the Doane University system.

In the Fall of 2019 Doane College of Education was granted accreditation by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation. In 2019 a committee met and developed a new mission, vision and value statements for the newly developed College of Education.

In compliance with this rule, students must affirm yearly, prior to student assisting or teaching in any practicum methods class or student teaching/internship experience, they have not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude. Furthermore, it is the student’s responsibility to report any change in status regarding this rule. Preservice teachers not meeting this standard are not allowed to participate in K-12 activities until they have received permission to proceed by the State Board.

Felon Status

The Nebraska Department of Education (NAC 92, Rule 20, 004.06) requires each preservice teachers to affirm that they have not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving abuse, neglect, or sexual misconduct (See Appendix G). The Nebraska Department of Education further states that felons may not student assist or student teach in K-12 classrooms, but in these instances may appeal to the State Board of Education for review. In compliance with this rule, preservice teachers must affirm yearly prior to any field experiences in any practicum or student teaching/internship they have not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude. It is the preservice teacher’s responsibility to report any change in status to the Dean of the College of Education regarding this requirement.

Background Check

Prior to admission to the Teacher Education program and again prior to student teaching all students will be required to undergo a background check through One Source. The College of Education will provide all needed information to complete this task. Preservice teachers are responsible for the cost of the background check. (Nebraska Department of Education, NAC 92, Rule 20, 004.06C)

Assessment fee and other fees

Fees are added each semester in Practicum I. The fees cover resource books, materials, speaker fees, and the learning management assessment system fee.

A fee for joining the Student Education Association of Nebraska (SEAN) will be paid on an annual basis. The fee provides preservice teachers membership in the local, state and national associations as well as insurance for field experiences and student teaching/internship.

Preservice teachers will not be an employee of the school where their field experience occurs, so will not be covered by its health or accident insurance. For this reason, they must be covered by liability insurance either through membership in SEAN or through a personal/professional liability insurance.

Class Attendance

Students are required to attend every class session and the PreK-12 all field experiences, practicum and student teaching/internship. Unexcused absences are not tolerated and repeated instances can lead to removal from the Teacher Education Program. Special provisions for making up work missed for an excused absence will be made by the instructor, and will need to make up lost hours during field experiences.

Course Participation

Doane University expects active participation, whether the course is on-ground or online. Students are expected to be prompt and regularly participate in all classes in their entirety. Consistent engagement is expected for online courses.

Unsatisfactory Performance in the Field Experience

The field experience including Practicum and Student Teaching/Internship are integral elements of quality teacher preparation and are at the heart of quality teacher preparation. As such, successful performance and effort are expected in each placement and unsatisfactory performance is a serious concern that could jeopardize admittance to or retention in the program. Unsatisfactory performance includes poor attendance and communication, failure to prepare and develop needed materials and lesson plans, and unprofessionalism in conduct, appearance and interactions. Instances of unsatisfactory performance may result in removal from the field experience and possible removal from the Teacher Education Program.

Feedback

An important aspect of the Doane Teacher Education Program is the opportunity for students to evaluate all of the experiences in the program. Each semester students have the opportunity to provide formal and informal feedback about their experiences in education program courses, practicum experiences and student teaching. Student contribution to the feedback process is highly encouraged because it is important to the continuous improvement of the program.

Digital Citizenship / Social Media

The professional educator considers the ramifications of using social media and direct communication via technology on one's interactions with students, colleagues, and the general public. (*MCEE - Model Code of Ethics for Educators, Principle V, A.1.) The pre-service teacher should use social media responsibly and transparently. The state granting certification makes the final determination on awarding a teaching certificate to each applicant. Nebraska has several different types of teacher certification available to preservice teachers that are currently in an education program.

All students must take and pass the required Nebraska State Department of Education content test before certification can take place. The required tests and costs may be found on the Nebraska State Department of Education website, the Educational Testing Service website (ets.org) or through the teacher education office. Preservice teachers cannot be certified by the Nebraska Department of Education without passing the content test. (NAC 92, Rule 24, Appendix C)

PRACTICUM II - Methods Courses

Practicum II methods courses relate to the development of specific competencies related to specialized certification --Methods. There are special competencies for elementary education, special education, middle school, early childhood, English as a Second Language, and secondary education, which are offered in required courses for each area. Courses in each area include designing instructional methods, facilitating growth, and understanding of the unique complexities of the content.

PRACTICUM III - Student Teaching / Internship

Practicum III is commonly referred to as student teaching/internship. This is an extended ten to sixteen week experience in a PK-12 setting where each student has primary responsibility for a classroom. Doane requires a student teaching experience of at least a full-day for one semester (at least 14 – 16 weeks) for secondary majors. A minimum of ten weeks full-day is required for each experience of two field endorsements OR field endorsement with a subject endorsement.

Student teaching/internship follows successful completion of Practicum I & II. Student teachers/interns are expected to reflect upon their experiences from the perspective of a developing professional. They are further encouraged to construct their own understandings that encompass the process of teaching and learning. Refer Appendix J for detailed information.

2. An area meeting for first-year teachers to gather to talk and share their experiences with other first year teachers and Doane faculty or an individual site visit if distance is reasonable.
3. The option to enroll in Beginning Teacher Seminar II, an online course, to assist you during your first year of teaching and to give you an opportunity to discuss and reflect on practices with other first year teachers.
4. The option for an in-person classroom visit will be arranged with the first year teachers.

Selection of Cooperating Schools and Teachers

Doane University makes student teaching/internship placement only in school districts or institutions which are fully accredited by the Nebraska Department of Education. (Nebraska Department of Education, NAC 92, Rule 20, 005.03B2 and 006.02C) See Appendix L for School Contract.

All Practicum III placements are made with cooperating teachers who are selected jointly by the cooperating school and Doane University and who meet the criteria established by the Nebraska Department of Education (NDE) and Council for Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). These criteria are: (a) a standard Teaching Certificate (NAC 92, Rule 20, 004.02D); (b) endorsed in area of supervision; (c) at least three years of successful teaching experience (NAC 92, Rule 20, 004.02D); (d) a good performance record and show professional growth; (e) the temperament, desire, and ability to work with a student teacher; (f) perform as a professional and encourage the development of a professional attitude on the part of the student teacher.

Clinical Field Experience Policy and Procedures for Alternative Student Teaching Experience

Applicable to Undergraduate Program

The importance of a quality student teaching experience is crucial for successful transition into the role of a professional teacher. As such, Doane University's Clinical Field Experience Committee will carefully review district-proposed alternative student teaching arrangements in conjunction with student factors to determine whether or not the student will be granted permission for the proposed role.

Additional considerations are necessary if a district would like to hire an undergraduate student who is or will be student teaching. Refer to Appendix L for Policy and Procedures for Alternative Student Teaching Experience.

Equity/Diversity/Inclusion

The Doane College of Education is committed to diversity in the teacher education program. It is critical for pre-service teachers to have an understanding of issues related to diversity and a commitment to inclusive practices in pursuit of equity. We strive to provide our pre-service teachers with experiences working with diverse populations and a variety of PK-12 schools. The Field Experiences seek to immerse pre-service teachers in the complexity of what it means to have equitable educational opportunities across different ethnic, racial and social-class groups and the overall diversity of cultures and groups within an ever changing society. Pre-service teachers are expected to be intentional in their efforts to build on the diverse strengths of students and be committed to providing the best opportunities and learning environment for every child during their field experiences. An important goal of diversity education is to support the acquisition of knowledge and skills necessary to make reflective decisions promoting democracy through personal, social and civic actions.

In compliance with Nebraska Department of Education LB 250, all Doane Education students are required to take EDU 211 and LAR 202 Democracy and Diversity OR EDU 624 Multicultural Education and Practices.

Cooperating Teacher Support / Resources

The responsibilities of the cooperating teacher include many activities which are summarized in four main areas: Orientation, Communication, Planning and Evaluation. The cooperating teacher will 1) orient the student teacher to school surroundings and staff/faculty; 2) communicate to classroom students the importance of a student teacher; 3) assist with planning skills of the student teacher; and 4) evaluate the student teacher.

Please refer to Appendix K for more details on each important area of hosting a student teacher.

Student Support / Resources

Developmental Process of Learning

Doane University Teacher Education Program believes becoming a professional is a developmental process that begins with the first courses in Practicum I and continues through the early years of the teaching career. The program is intentionally designed to scaffold content and experiences to facilitate growth. Students are expected to achieve progressive levels of competency through each phase of the Teacher Education Program. If a student fails to meet these expectations, there is an opportunity to repeat specific experiences to meet the expected competency level. This may include retaking classes, visiting with an advisor for an informal plan to help meet requirements, and for more serious matters meeting with the respective Program Directors for discussion as well as the Chair of the Undergraduate Program or possibly the Dean of the College of Education. A student with multiple and egregious issues may be assigned a remediation plan.

Evaluation and Assessment

The Teacher Education Program uses data collected from students, supervisors, and cooperating teachers to foster the continuous improvement of the program. Data is collected from a variety of sources including: cooperating teachers, field experience supervisors, faculty, pre-service teachers, and students. Feedback from assessment and evaluation tools is used to help support pre-service teachers' professional growth as well as provide reflective data for faculty and administrators to consider areas for program refinement. Evaluation tools are based on the Doane Teacher Education Program Standards. The Doane standards are based on the INTASC standards and Enhancing Professional Practice: A Framework for Teaching, Charlotte Danielson, 1996 and Evaluation of Student Teachers Guidebook, Phi Delta Kappa International & Ball State University, 2000. Refer to Appendix M for all assessments.

Resources and Curriculum

The Teacher Education Program and Doane University provide a substantial amount of resources and literature to prepare students and assist them with their coursework.

Most of the books and articles for the courses are available in the Doane library. The library maintains a permanent contemporary collection of literature appropriate for PK-12 students. In addition, the library (<https://www.doane.edu/library>) maintains a comprehensive database of education resources in electronic formats including access to hundreds of full text education journal titles. If a student should have difficulty securing materials, contact a librarian or an education faculty member.

Additional curriculum and resources can be found in the Chab Weyers Art/Education Building (Crete campus) on the 3rd floor for check out in one of the following classrooms:

- EA 312: Substantial elementary reading/writing materials collection
- EA 321: Special education journal, assessment, and resource collection
- EA 371: Secondary curriculum collection
- EA 313: Teaching materials

Doane University is also proud to have an outdoor Nature Explore classroom on campus for use.

Advising

Advisors are also available as part of a pre-service teacher support system. Pre-service teachers will be assigned an advisor(s) with knowledge and experience in teacher education who can assist in planning and registering for program(s) of study leading to certification.

Although the academic advising team has all of the information needed to develop a program of studies while at Doane, students may wish to consult with a member of the education faculty with special questions. Some questions for this faculty would be:

1. What are the prospects for teachers in a certain geographical area or a certain subject matter area?
2. What internship opportunities are available to students in teacher education?
3. What other career opportunities are open to graduates in teacher education beyond the classroom teaching experience?
4. How can I prepare for the Praxis Subject Content Mastery test?
5. What are good combinations for academic study and dual endorsements?

ADMISSION and RETENTION in Teacher Education

GPA preliminary program requirements

Initial Program: Students intending to work toward certification must have a 2.30 Cumulative grade point average to enter the initial teacher education course, EDU 211.

Initial Program at the Advanced Level: 1) Bachelor's Cumulative GPA of 3.0

PROGRAM CAREER INFORMATION

Career Preparation

Career preparation is an ongoing and important part of the Teacher Education Program. Faculty, staff, and pre-service teachers share in the responsibility for the development of career readiness. The teacher education office provides career services to all education students. Students work throughout all aspects of the program to develop their knowledge, skills and dispositions for their career as an educator. This includes developing an educational philosophy, establishing a perspective around classroom management and student behavior, developing resumes, practicing interview techniques, and interviewing with school districts.

Self-Managed Credential Files

Credential files are used to verify teacher a candidate's professional training and experience.

In the field of education, credential files are commonly requested during the application process. A credential file typically includes your reference letters and a copy of your university transcript. The job search requires job seekers to be in charge of their documents without a third party. A self-managed credential file is submitted directly to the school district by the applicant.

The College of Education supports teacher candidates as they create and self-manage their own credential file.

IT IS IMPORTANT to note that the pre-service teacher should have experiences in each of the above areas. Pre-service teachers are in “training.”

FIELD EXPERIENCE GUIDELINES1. Qualifications

- A. Doane assumes the responsibility to screen candidates for the field experience. While it is required of all students in the Doane Teacher Education Program, no student will knowingly be placed who is not qualified for that position.
- B. Each student will provide the classroom teacher with an information sheet of personal information if she/he requests such information.

2. Objectives of the Field Experience Program

- A. To assist the teacher in providing a positive learning atmosphere in the classroom.
- B. To provide pre-service teacher with opportunities to work directly with students in individual, small group, and large group settings.
- C. To help the pre-service teachers extend their background through firsthand experience in the classroom.
- D. To provide the teacher the assistance with classroom duties when needed.

3. Orientation for the Field Experience

- A. Doane University's Responsibility:
 - 1) To provide information for the students in a seminar about appropriate dress and personal decorum while in the role of a teaching assistant.
 - 2) To assure that each pre-service teacher has liability insurance through his/her membership in NSEA.
 - 3) To provide the pre-service teachers with the appropriate procedures for informing their cooperating teacher when they are ill and unable to be in the classroom – call the office of the principal and leave a message for the teacher when it is not possible to reach the teacher personally.
 - 4) Set up the time for the pre-service teachers to meet the cooperating teachers.
 - 5) Do all assigning of the pre-service teachers.
- B. Public School's Responsibility:
 - 1) Provide a time at the beginning of each school year when Doane faculty can acquaint the teaching staff with Doane's Field Experience program.

- 2) Assist in getting the request forms from the faculty.
- 3) Acquaint each pre-service teacher with special rules that apply to a particular classroom or building.
- 4) Introduce the pre-service teacher to the classroom and to fellow teachers.

4. Supervision and Responsibility

- A. Supervision of the pre-service teacher on a daily basis is the responsibility of the classroom teacher.
- B. Doane Teacher Education Staff will provide supervision of special teaching experiences of the pre-service teachers when individual arrangements have been made.
- C. Doane University takes full responsibility for handling all disciplinary measures that apply to individual situations.
- D. Each cooperating teacher will complete an evaluation form on the pre-service teacher within the classroom. Your evaluation in each of the areas is considered in giving the final grade.
- E. Cooperating Teachers may wish to provide periodic evaluations through oral or written communication. Doane faculty will meet periodically with the teachers/principals to seek information about overall experience.

FIELD EXPERIENCE ENGAGEMENT STRATEGIESStrategies

1. Become a member of the team in spirit as well as in name.
2. Strive for consistent approach in working with students. Follow the lead of the teacher.
3. Build up the teacher in the eyes of the students. The teacher must come first in their thinking; remember, you are the helper.
4. Do not allow students to circumvent the cooperating teacher's directions
5. Remember that schooling attempts to help youth grow in independence as well as in knowledge.
6. Maintain an attitude of encouragement with students. Each student needs success experiences and each wants to be important.
7. Refer to each student by name.
8. Work positively in the area of behavior.
9. Do not discipline the students. This is the responsibility of the cooperating teacher. It is proper for you to stop a hostile action, such as a fight; but, then take the students to the teacher for discipline.
10. Plan ahead, try to foresee and prevent trouble before it happens.
11. Be slow to anger. When students are disagreeable to you, it is not generally meant for you personally. They are more often frustrated by the world as they see it.
12. Work with students in such a way that the student is not exposed to unnecessary embarrassment.
13. Treat all information about students and families in strictest confidence. Do not discuss the students with anyone but the staff of the school. This includes the student's parents. Parents' questions should be directed to the teacher. If they start a conversation with you about their child, get out of the conversation.
14. Take a little time each day to discuss with the teacher your role in the class in future class work.
15. Do not assume responsibility for planning or for working with any students without teacher direction. If the teacher asks you to use your own skills, then go ahead on your own.
16. Ask frequently, "What do you want me to do?" Then do it as the teacher sees it, not as you see it.
17. Be alert to opportunities such as cleaning up the room and, in elementary, helping children with coats and overshoes.

18. Take time to dress neatly even if you will be at the school for only a short time.
19. Be on time. Every interruption disturbs the class. And be reliable in attendance. Failure to let your cooperating teacher know of absences could result in your being dropped from the program.

Remember:

- Initial Program only: If you cannot attend because of serious illness, you must go see the nurse at Doane. Be sure to tell the nurse you are an education student. The nurse will notify the education office and your cooperating teacher if necessary.
- If you have a death in the family, call the teacher or the principal's office as soon as possible.
- If you know ahead of time that you will not be able to come, tell the teacher as far ahead of time as possible so that arrangements can be made.

School Rules and Handbooks

It is recommended to obtain a copy of the teacher and student handbooks. Study them carefully, as you will meet situations that require knowledge of school rules and the rights and responsibilities of teachers and students.

The educator shall recognize the magnitude of the responsibility he or she has accepted in choosing a career in education, and engages, individually and collectively with other educators, to judge his or her colleagues, and to be judged by them, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

The standards listed in this section are held to be generally accepted minimal standards for public school certificate holders in Nebraska with respect to ethical and professional conduct and are, therefore, declared to be the criteria of ethical and professional performance adopted pursuant to the provisions of Section 79-866 R.R.S. for holders of public school certificates.

MCEE Glossary

Boundaries: The verbal, physical, emotional and social distances that an educator must maintain in order to ensure structure, security, and predictability in an educational environment. Most often, the boundaries that are transgressed relate to role, time and place. By respecting contracted roles, appropriate working hours, and the location of the learning environment, secure boundaries are in place for all members of the schooling community.

District/school district: This is often referred to as a “local education agency.” A “district” in this document is defined as a public board of education or other public authority legally constituted within a State for either administrative control or direction of, or to perform a service function for, public elementary schools or secondary schools in a city, county, township, school district, or other political subdivision of a State, or for a combination of school districts or counties that is recognized in a State as an administrative agency for its public elementary schools or secondary schools. This can include charter schools, magnet schools, virtual magnet schools, regional educational school districts, or other entities falling under the definition above.

Culture: The customary beliefs, social forms, and material traits of a racial, religious, or social group, including the characteristic features of everyday existence shared by people in a place or time¹.

Educator: Educators are the target audience for the MCEE, and are defined as licensed educators. These include paraprofessionals, teachers, teacher leaders, student support personnel and administrators. However, others who interact with students who are not under the auspices of an education-related licensing organization such as coaches, school secretaries, custodians or other school staff are encouraged to adopt or adapt this Model Code of Educator Ethics. See a separate definition for “professional educator.”

Ethic of care: Responding with compassion to the needs of students.

Ethical Decision-Making Model: A framework utilized by educators to guide decision-making which includes professional dispositions; applicable laws, statutes, and policies; the Model Code of Educator Ethics; and other guidelines that have been adopted and endorsed by educational organizations.

Fiduciary relationship: A fiduciary relationship is one in which a person justifiably places confidence in another whose aid, advice, or protection is assumed. Inherent in such fiduciary relationships is an imbalance of power. Educators have a unique responsibility, as the relationship between student and teacher differs from other professional/client relationships (e.g., attorneys, physicians, clergy). Educators are entrusted with the safety and welfare of students during and after school hours and serve “in loco parentis.”

Implicit or Explicit Demands of an Organization: Implicit demands are often subjective or implied and reflect the culture of the schooling environment. Explicit demands are clearly articulated through mandates, policies, or statutes.

Harm: The impairment of learning or any potential action which may lead to physical, emotional, psychological, sexual, or intellectual damage to a student or a member of the school community.

Learning Community: A group of educators who work with one another to achieve the shared goals of their school and engage in collaborative professional learning to strengthen practice and increase student results.¹

Multiple Relationships: Multiple relationships occur when the educator is in a professional role with one or more members of the school community and also has a personal relationship with that person or a member of that person's family. Multiple relationships have the potential to impair objectivity, competence, or effectiveness in performing his or her functions as an educator.

New Educators: New educators include individuals in an educator preparation program or newly employed in the education profession, including paraprofessionals, teachers, administrators, and student support personnel.

Professional educator: A licensed educator who demonstrates the highest standards of ethical and professionally competent practice and is committed to advancing the interests, achievement and well-being of students. Safe environments/Safety and well-being: A school setting which promotes the well-being of all members of the school community and is characterized by the absence of physical, psychological, sexual or emotional harm

School Community: This term usually refers to those stakeholders invested in the welfare of a school and its community. A school community includes school administrators, teachers, school staff members, students, their parents and families, school board members and other community members.²

Sensitive Information: This includes but is not limited to student information and educational records, including medical or counseling records.

Student: A learner attending a P-12 school.

Technology: Tools, systems, applications and processes that can include, but are not limited to, electronic communications networks such as the internet and electronic devices such as computers, laptops, phones and other hardware/software that deliver text, audio, images, animation, and streaming video.

Acknowledgement of Information and Verification of Understanding

Completion of a Doane Teacher Education Program is not a guarantee of obtaining certification to teach in any state. The state granting certification makes the final determination on awarding a teaching certificate to each applicant. Nebraska has several different types of teacher certification available to preservice teachers that are currently in an education program.

All students must take and pass the required Nebraska State Department of Education content test before certification can take place. The required tests and costs may be found on the Nebraska State Department of Education website, the Educational Testing Service website (ets.org) or through the teacher education office. Preservice teachers cannot be certified by the Nebraska Department of Education without passing the content test. (NAC 92, Rule 24)

Students admitted into the Doane Teacher Education Program must acknowledge receipt of this information and verify their understanding (below).

APPENDIX J

THE STUDENT TEACHER

Practicum III - Student Teaching provides the student teacher with the opportunity to demonstrate the attitudes, skills and knowledge which have been developed in the campus setting. The increased responsibility for the student learning while immersed in the daily routine of the public school setting allows the student teacher to demonstrate teaching strengths and competence yet receive the

PROFESSIONAL and EXPECTATIONS

Code of Ethics

The teaching profession has designed a code of ethics which governs individuals within the profession. Student teachers are subject to the guidelines of this code and to the implications that teachers must always be guided by the highest ethical and social standards. Refer to Appendix D and E to review standards.

Mental/Emotional Health

As required by the Nebraska Department of Education (NAC 92, Rule 21, 003.10) , preservice teachers are required to affirm under oath they do not have an order or determination currently in affect by a court or any other governmental body which finds the student to be any of the following: a mentally ill and dangerous person, mentally incompetent to stand trial, acquitted of criminal charges because of insanity an incapacitated person in need of a guardian, or unable to manage one's property due to mental illness, mental deficiency, chronic use of drugs or chronic intoxication; or is currently an inpatient or resident in a mental health facility due to a determination by a qualified mental health professional. In compliance with this rule, students must affirm yearly, prior to student assisting or teaching in any practicum methods class or student teaching/internship experience, they have not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude. Furthermore, it is the student's responsibility to report any change in status regarding this rule. Preservice teachers not meeting this standard are not allowed to participate in PreK-12 activities until they have received permission to proceed by the State Board.

Confidentiality

The student teacher will normally follow the school's policy governing confidential information. This private information must never be the subject of casual discussion in the faculty workroom or lounge or anywhere outside of school. Throughout the student teaching period, it is desirable for the cooperating teacher to share pertinent information concerning the pupils with the student teacher. Such information is to be regarded as a confidence.

Communication

An effective classroom teacher is a skilled listener, a dynamic speaker and an effective writer. These skills must be given daily attention. Student teachers will be expected to demonstrate these effectively communication skills within the classroom.

The student teacher needs to communicate openly with the cooperating teacher, and with the supervising teacher. Open and frank communication in these relationships will keep small problems from developing into difficult and complex issues. The student teacher must sometimes initiate and always respond to opportunities for informal conferences with the cooperating teacher. During these casual discussions, and during the meetings to discuss the completed evaluations, the student teacher should remain relaxed, receptive to constructive criticisms, attentive to the positive aspects of teaching skills, and should avoid a defensive attitude about performance. The student teacher should also prepare to have questions for the cooperating teacher about revisions and modifications in planning and implementing the learning activities.

During the regular visits of the supervising teacher, the student teacher should not hesitate to express areas of concern or to request assistance for a particular area of instruction. The supervising teacher can be of invaluable assistance to the student teaching experience. Maximum benefit from Practicum III will be achieved only if the student teacher considers the supervising teacher to be a part of the support personnel to the student teaching experience upon regular school visits or at other times of particular need.

Classroom Management

Discipline is frequently a prime concern of the student teacher. Because the philosophy and methods of discipline and classroom management vary widely between school districts and classes, the student teacher will conform to the disciplinary code of the cooperating school.

Absences

Whenever possible, the student teacher will give advance notification of anticipated absences for family emergencies, job interviews, or participation in important athletic events. In all cases of personal illness the student teacher must notify the cooperating teacher and supervising teacher as soon as it is obvious one is not be able to teach. The student teacher will follow the procedures of the local school district to report illness. In cases of extended illness or an unusually great number of absences for other reasons, the student teacher may be asked to extend the student teaching time beyond that of the original schedule.

Appearance

Student teachers are responsible to the school system in which they are doing their student teaching. Regulations in dress vary greatly from school to school. The student teacher will comply with the school's stated Board Policies regarding appropriate dress, personal hygiene, and professional appearance.

Calendar

During the student teaching experience, the student teacher will follow the vacation schedule of the assigned local school district.

STUDENT TEACHING BEST PRACTICES

Planning

Comprehensive unit and lesson planning is vital to effective teaching. The cooperating teacher, supervising teacher, and the student teacher shall determine, according to the unique factors in each placement, the number of units to be written by the student teacher. In some instances, the student teacher may follow existing units of study and will be expected to make complete lesson plans as the student teacher assumes classroom control and full teaching responsibility. All lesson plans will be consistent with the practices of the cooperating teacher. Special attention should be given to providing for individual differences among students.

Teaching Methods

The student teacher should realize that the cooperating teacher has been successful in the role of a teacher for several years and possesses first-hand knowledge of effective methods, evaluation, discipline, pupil's attitudes and classroom climate. In keeping with the student teacher's general role, methods and activities planned by the student teacher should be consistent with those used by the cooperating teacher. This does not restrict the student teacher from planning a wide variety of experiences, with the cooperating teacher's approval, in order to further explore the student teacher's personal teaching style, and to promote the learning of a wide range of student abilities, interests and cultural backgrounds. Methods should be selected which afford the opportunity to enhance the professional learning of the student teacher and the subject area learning of the public school student.

Assuming Classroom Control

The Doane University Education Faculty does not set any arbitrary time limits on the student teacher's assumption of responsibility within the classroom. Because student teachers enter Practicum III with varying levels of skills, and because teaching skills are refined at equally varying rates during the experience, flexibility in the use of established guidelines is necessary.

During the initial phase (in most cases this will be approximately one week), the student teacher may observe the cooperating teacher, become familiar with curriculum materials, review cumulative folders, and perhaps be involved in teacher-designed materials preparation. The student teacher may also be responsible for teaching small groups or individuals according to the cooperating teacher's plans for portions of the school day.

During the second phase of Practicum III (usually beginning in the second week), the student teacher plans and implements lessons. This phase is a gradual transition, beginning with one class and moving to all classes over a period of three or four weeks. The student teacher would normally expect the cooperating teacher to remain in the classroom for most of the time early in the experience and to do periodic evaluations later in the experience.

During the third phase, the student teacher is responsible for the full teaching load of the cooperating teacher. New units may be created during this time, or the student teacher may follow the curriculum sequencing and materials of the cooperating teacher. The cooperating teacher may be absent from the room as frequently or infrequently as appropriate. The classroom students should view the student teacher as “the teacher” during this phase. The cooperating teacher should always be informed about the anticipated activities of each class. Although the cooperating teacher is not involved in direct teaching activity with students, the cooperating teacher remains a member of the educational team responsible for the instruction of the students.

The final segment of student teaching is a transition phase with the cooperating teacher moving back into the position of full teaching responsibility. A gradual transition will benefit both the students and the teachers who are involved in the process. As the student teacher has less demands for teaching activities, the student teacher may observe teaching in other classrooms and special areas within the school.

THE COOPERATING TEACHER

The cooperating teacher is selected according to the criteria listed in the Selection of Cooperating Teachers and Schools section of this handbook. The responsibilities of the cooperating teacher include many activities which are summarized in four main areas: Orientation, Communication, Planning and Evaluation.

Orientation

The cooperating teacher will want to make the student teacher feel as welcome and comfortable as possible. A warm, genuine anticipation of the student's initial nervousness and a series of frequent conferences and directed observations will help the student to lose that self-consciousness. As soon as possible, the cooperating teacher should introduce the student teacher to the school staff, provide a full tour of facilities, and invite the student teacher to all faculty, department, PTA, and education association meetings. The cooperating teacher should also help the student teacher establish appropriate social relations in the school and in the community.

Communication

The early weeks are the most important in the communication process between the cooperating teacher and the student teacher. The cooperating teacher needs to communicate openly with the student teacher, and with the supervisor. Open and frank communication in these relationships will keep small problems from developing into difficult and complex issues. The cooperating teacher should initiate and always respond to opportunities for informal conferences with the student teacher. During these casual discussions, and during the meetings to discuss the completed evaluations, the cooperating teacher provide constructive criticisms, be attentive to the positive aspects of teaching skills, and should provide explicit feedback that leads to opportunities for professional growth. It is extremely important that the cooperating teacher have daily communication with the student teacher to provide constructive feedback relating to the total role within the classroom and school. Too frequently cooperating teachers fail to provide this feedback until late in the student teaching experience. At that point there is little to alter the role significantly of the student teacher.

It is important that the cooperating teacher convey to the PreK-12 classroom students the impression that the student teacher is a co-worker of considerable competence, not a subordinate whose directions are of no importance. This can be communicated to the students in numerous ways.

Planning

Planning skills, while "learned" in the university classroom, are frequently not second nature to the student teacher. The cooperating teacher should give special attention to this aspect of the student teacher's growth during the early weeks of student teaching. The cooperating teacher should specify if original units are to be prepared by the student teacher. The cooperating teacher should also indicate which components of the total daily lesson plan need to be submitted on a regular basis. The cooperating teacher should allow and encourage the student teacher to try different teaching strategies without threat of failure and be willing to evaluate the effectiveness of these strategies. The cooperating teacher should also indicate whether to review lesson plans before they are implemented, and the time line for review and possible revision. Such revisions will normally occur more frequently during the early weeks in the student teaching assignment. Cooperative long-range planning will help the student teacher to feel more a part of the class, will help to reduce the initial nervousness, and will contribute to the student teacher being a more effective member of the team.

Evaluation

The cooperating teacher spends many more class hours observing and analyzing the teaching skills of the student teacher than does either the principal or the supervising teacher. The information obtained during these observations should be honestly shared in a variety of settings. The cooperating teacher should attempt a daily casual conference with the student teacher during which time specific bits of information about the lessons and student achievements may be shared. On a weekly basis, it is recommended that a conference be held to note the development of teaching skills which has occurred and the expected classroom duties of the student teacher for the following week. The importance of frequent and on-going verbal communications between the student teacher and the cooperating teacher cannot be over-emphasized.

The regularly scheduled visits of the supervising teacher are planned to allow a free exchange of information. The cooperating teacher should be willing to give an honest and truthful evaluation of the student teacher's performance. The supervising teacher should also provide to the cooperating teacher the written evaluations to be completed at designated intervals of the student teaching experience. These written evaluations will assist the cooperating teacher to identify strengths of the student teacher and areas which need greater development in the remaining weeks of the assignment. The final written evaluation completed by the cooperating teacher and is placed in the student teacher's credential file. Refer to Appendix H.

Cooperating teacher's evaluations throughout the student teaching experience provide a basis for the final university grade assigned for Practicum III. The final grade, however, is determined by the supervisor from Doane University who is directly responsible for reporting that grade to the University Registrar.

Assessments

The Teacher Education Program uses data collected from students, supervisors, and cooperating teachers to foster the continuous improvement of the program. Data is collected from a variety of sources including: cooperating teachers, field experience supervisors, faculty, pre-service teachers, and students. Feedback from assessment and evaluation tools is used to help support pre-service teachers' professional growth as well as provide reflective data for faculty and administrators to consider areas for program refinement. Evaluation tools are based on the Doane Teacher Education Program Standards. The Doane standards are based on the INTASC standards and Enhancing Professional Practice: A Framework for Teaching, Charlotte Danielson, 1996 and Evaluation of Student Teachers Guidebook, Phi Delta Kappa International & Ball State University, 2000

Rubrics

Rubrics are available to provide specific descriptors for each of the Doane Teacher Education Standards and Nebraska Clinical Practice Standards. The cooperating teacher should refer to the rubrics before completing the evaluation form. Refer to Appendix F and M.

Evaluation Form

The score recorded on the evaluations should represent the overall evaluation of each standard. The following descriptions of the terms used on the Doane Teacher Education and Nebraska Clinical Practice evaluation forms will be useful in completing the student teaching forms:

Doane Teacher Education Standards

Novice (Needs Improvement)	Performance needs more time, practice, and support to begin moving in a positive direction.
Distinguished (Exceeds standards)	Performance is strong, demonstrating command of area.
Proficient (Meets standards)	Performance is consistently positive.
Progressing (Making progress)	Performance is developing, moving in a positive direction.

Recognition to the Cooperating School

Doane University appreciates the effort of the public school administrators and staff in providing a setting for effective student teaching. Doane University recognizes these efforts by providing consultative services to the cooperating school, free of charge, in areas where it is possible and desirable; by providing free admission for cooperating teachers to any workshop held on the Doane Campus and by providing cooperating teachers with a voucher redeemable for one free graduate credit hour. School administrators are encouraged to contact the Teacher Education Faculty for consulting services. Cooperating teachers are able to apply the voucher toward graduate tuition.

Scholarships for future teachers from Doane are also provided in appreciation for the support of cooperating school districts. A cooperating school district is entitled to one scholarship for each 20 student teachers. The number served may be accumulated over a period of years. If a school is eligible to award a scholarship and no student takes the scholarship, it may carry over for one year. The award entitles the recipient to $375.00 for each academic year for four years. The local cooperating school district may recommend up to three students for consideration. Students recommended must be in the upper 25% of their graduating class. The student must meet the requirements of his/her academic scholarship to remain eligible for the Cooperating School Future Teacher Honor Award.

SUPPLEMENTAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN DOANE UNIVERSITY AND COOPERATING PUBLIC SCHOOLS FOR STUDENT TEACHERS AS LONG TERM SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS

The following agreement between Doane University and the _____ Public Schools is to clarify the responsibilities of the cooperating school, the teacher, and the University regarding the student teacher preparation program.

Supplemental Requirements for Student Teachers as Long Term Substitute Teachers

In addition to the points covered in “A Student Agreement between Doane University and Cooperating Public Schools” additional considerations are necessary if an undergraduate student is hired as a long-term substitute teacher during the student-teaching experience.

The importance of a quality student teaching experience is crucial for successful transition into the role of a professional teacher. As such, Doane University will grant permission to accept a “student teaching placement as a long-term substitute teacher” only upon recommendation of the faculty in the Initial Certification Program. Such an arrangement will be considered in extreme circumstances and is not the preferred experience for Doane preservice teachers.

The following Doane requirements from the hiring districts are in place to support the success of the undergraduate preservice student teacher serving as a long term substitute:

1. Such an arrangement will be considered when the cooperating teacher is leaving part way through the year/semester (or at conclusion of their student teaching experience).
2. The long term substitute teaching situation must be conducive to “successful teaching.” The circumstances should be appropriate for a student-teacher trying to be a full-time teacher. It should not be so full of unmanageable issues that even an experienced teacher would struggle for success.
3. The student teacher hired as a long term substitute will need two release days (per semester) for site observations of other colleagues.
4. The student teacher hired as a long term substitute will need to be released to attend the “pull-back days” on site at Doane University.
5. The hiring district will need to pay for the extra Doane supervision necessary to assist the student-teacher. Doane Supervisors will agree to serve beyond the general requirements for a traditional student-teaching placement.
6. The hiring district will need to assign a cooperating teacher willing to engage in needed support or feedback. Doane expects weekly classroom observations and formative feedback from the cooperating teacher to the student teacher.
7. The hiring district will need to provide Instructional support throughout the student-teaching semester. Such support might include helping the student teacher hired as a long term substitute align instruction with required district assessments or classroom management protocols.

Doane University does not discriminate in any of its academic or nonacademic programs or in its hiring policy on the basis of sex as required by Title IX. It is also the policy of Doane to be assured that no school with which it is cooperating discriminates in any of its programs or hiring policies on the basis of sex. Signing this agreement indicates that the school with whom Doane is cooperating is in full compliance with Title IX.

Clinical Field Experience Policy and Procedures for Alternative Student Teaching Experience

In addition to the points covered in “A Student Teacher Agreement between Doane University and Cooperating Public Schools” additional considerations are necessary if a district would like to hire an undergraduate student who is or will be student teaching.

The importance of a quality student teaching experience is crucial for successful transition into the role of a professional teacher. As such, Doane University’s Clinical Field Experience Committee will carefully review district-proposed alternative student teaching arrangements in conjunction with student factors to determine whether or not the student will be granted permission for the proposed role.

Clinical Field Experience Committee Procedures

1. The district will contact the Doane University director of the program of study to inquire about alternative student teaching arrangements. The director will provide the potential hiring administrator with a district proposal form to be completed by the hiring district and submitted to the Clinical Field Experience Committee for review.
2. The director will gather information regarding the student, including but not limited to clinical field experience evaluations, teacher identity development progress, grades, and attendance for the committee to review.
3. The student will submit a student proposal form for an Alternative Student Teaching Experience to the Clinical Field Experience Committee indicating their commitment to the field of education and an action plan regarding how they will balance professional responsibility with extracurriculars and other personal responsibilities.
4. The Clinical Field Experience Committee will meet to review the proposal and determine whether to accept, deny, or propose adjustments to the request.
5. A letter will be distributed to the district representative following the decision.

Clinical Field Request Considerations

1. Student readiness factors including, but not limited to, practicum evaluations, teacher identity development assessment data, grades, attendance, and additional responsibilities.
2. District support factors including, but not limited to, the provision of a cooperating/mentor teacher, opportunities to observe other teachers, regular observations of the student teacher with specific feedback, release from responsibilities to attend Doane classes, instructional support or coaching, and proximity to Doane supervision.
3. Commitments already made with other cooperating teachers and/or school districts for student teaching

Doane University does not discriminate in any of its academic or nonacademic programs or in its hiring policy on the basis of sex as required by Title IX. It is also the policy of Doane to be assured that no school with which it is cooperating discriminates in any of its programs or hiring policies on the basis of sex. Signing this agreement indicates that the school with whom Doane is cooperating is in full compliance with Title IX.

Doane University Education Department

A Doane representative will monitor the implementation and success of the Alternative Student Teaching Plan. If agreed-upon supports by the district are not implemented and/or the environment is not conducive to successful learning and development of the student teacher, it could result in a discontinuation of the alternative student teaching experience.

EVALUATIONS and ASSESSMENTS

The Teacher Education Program uses data collected from students, supervisors, and cooperating teachers to foster the continuous improvement of the program. Data is collected from a variety of sources including: cooperating teachers, field experience supervisors, faculty, pre-service teachers, and students. Feedback from assessment and evaluation tools is used to help support pre-service teachers' professional growth as well as provide reflective data for faculty and administrators to consider areas for program refinement. Evaluation tools are based on the Doane Teacher Education Program Standards. The Doane standards are based on the INTASC standards and Enhancing Professional Practice: A Framework for Teaching, Charlotte Danielson, 1996 and Evaluation of Student Teachers Guidebook, Phi Delta Kappa International & Ball State University, 2000

Benchmark scoring guide for all assessments.

All assessments are rated on a 4 point rubric.

1. Novice – Needs Improvement – Performance needs more time, practice, and support to begin moving in a positive direction.
2. Progressing – Making progress: Performance is developing; moving in a positive direction.
3. Proficient – Meets Standard: performance is consistently positive;
4. Distinguished – Exceeds Standard: Performance is strong, demonstrating command of area.

Cut Scores:

Novice - 1	Progressing - 2	Proficient - 3	Distinguished - 4
Practicum I (EDU211/221) 1.0 to 2.0	Practicum 1 (EDU 321/341 & Initial Program at the Advanced Level) 2.0 to 3.0	Practicum III (Student Teaching) 3.0 to 4.0	Practicum III (Student Teaching)
	2.5 to 3.0 EDU 321, 341, & Initial Program at the Advanced Level

Each of the areas in the rubrics identifies the behaviors to be observed and the levels at which the candidates must perform.

The following overall assessments are used for all initial program candidates.

1. Field Experience Rubric

The Doane Field Experience Rubric is used in all preservice teacher field experiences. Rubrics are completed by both the Cooperating Teacher and Field experience supervisor. The rubric provides feedback to the preservice teacher on their growth in each of the Doane Teacher Education Program Standards. The assessment is filled out at the end of the semesters through a portal to the assessment software by the cooperating teacher and supervising teacher.

Students must receive a satisfactory rating of 2 according to the benchmarks for progression through the program. Should a candidate not make a 2, they will be placed on probation, dismissed or counseled out of the program through action by the teacher education committee and faculty.

At the beginning of the semester to ensure consistency in rating, cooperating teachers are introduced through correspondence from Doane Teacher Education Department and the practicum faculty. Also, the school based faculty may watch the on-line training video concerning filling out assessments for Doane University.

2. Disposition Data Rubric

The College of Education developed a dispositional assessment form referred to as “Teacher Identity Development.” Faculty and cooperating teachers will fill out the form via an assessment software portal throughout the pre-service teacher’s program. This form will be used in two different formats.

During the pre-service teachers’ practicums, there are no values, but instead a word rating scale is connected as options to the Teacher Identity Development form. The word rating scale options are: Rarely, Sometimes, Frequently, Consistently, or Not observed in this setting. The information is used formatively to help pre-service teachers learn and grow. In addition, the individual results are not shared with the pre-service teacher or used as a summative assessments, rather the students’ view results on how their behaviors are perceived across contexts. Students who do not receive favorable or acceptable results, are counseled out of the program or are remediated by their practicum instructors or advisors.

During the pre-service teachers’ student teaching/internship(s) experience, the Teacher Identity Development form will be utilized to provide evidence of the CAEP 2022 Standards. The Teacher Identity Development form is tagged to the following CAEP 2022 Standards: Standard 1 Content Pedagogical Knowledge. More specifically to R1.1, R1.2, R1.3 and R1.4. In addition, the Teacher Identity Development form meets the CAEP 2022 Standard 3.2 Monitoring and supporting Candidate Progression requirements.

In addition, during the student teaching experience, the pre-service teacher is assessed on the State of Nebraska’s Clinical rubrics. Both rubrics are completed by the cooperating teacher and supervising instructor.

The two scores on both forms are then compared. Students who are not meeting favorable or acceptable dispositions at student teaching are counseled out of the program.

3. Student Teaching Evaluation

Student teaching evaluation is provided through two methods. (1) the Doane University student teaching rubric designed with the Doane University standards and (2) the State of Nebraska Rubric. Both of these instruments are based on the INTASC standards. Both Rubrics are explained to students in the seminar prior to student teaching. The rubric is also explained to the cooperating teachers and supervising teachers at the meeting and dinner held prior to student teaching. If a person cannot attend, the Doane faculty in charge of the student teaching group (Elem, Sec, Middle, Early, SpEd), contacts the cooperating teacher. Supervising teachers also receive training about the rubrics at meetings with the Doane faculty in charge of the area. Cooperating teachers and supervising teachers may also watch the video about our rubrics and what to look for on our website.

4. Critical Piece Assessments

There are three Critical Piece assessments. The purpose of the critical pieces is to document the growth of the student in becoming a teacher in the areas of designing a philosophy of education, providing a classroom management platform, and designing a lesson plan. Each one is developed in a different practicum experience. Each assessment has its own rubric for scoring. Each critical piece provides a benchmark students must meet to move to the next level. Students who do not meet the standard for each critical piece are counseled out of the program or are remediated by an IHE faculty. The critical pieces are introduced in the practicum experience or class that is associated with them. The students are given an introduction and information on how to complete the assignment. Each assignment is a topic that the class discusses and reflects on. Reliability and validity are calculated on the critical pieces as well as interrater reliability. The critical pieces are placed in the portfolio. The critical pieces are as follows:

Philosophy of Education	Must score at least a 2
Lesson Plan	Must score at least a 3
Classroom Management Platform	Must score at least a 3

5. Impact on Student Learning

The impact on student learning assessment (Teacher Work Sample) is one of the assessments used to document program impact by our students. The purpose of the TWS is to provide insight into the ability of students to teach and be effective in the teaching. Each student completes a student learning project that includes the following: Classroom context; Instruction planning on the project; assessment strategies to be used while teaching the unit; analysis of the assessments; summary; interpretation and conclusions of documentation of the impact on students' learning; implications for the future; and overall reflection of the teaching experience. The project is assigned and discussed in course work prior to student teaching. The student completes the course work during student teaching and the project is due at the end of the student teaching semester. Failure to complete the Teacher Work Sample results in not being recommended for certification. Remediation, if needed, occurs in the summer prior to certification.
